WELCOMING WEEK BACKGROUND

This is a moment for us to reaffirm that our communities are stronger when we all feel like we belong and the contributions of all are welcome. At a time when political rhetoric has deepened divisions and hate crimes have risen around the world, Welcoming Week 2019 reminds us to double-down on our inclusive vision and find new ways to bring together people across lines of difference to develop greater understanding and mutual support.

To change the narrative, to shape the immigrant experience, to affirm our values and live up to them – these are enormous tasks that take all of us working together. Perhaps nothing is more important, for this is the heart of our democracy.

As Welcoming America celebrates its 10 year anniversary in 2019, we see how Welcomers are leading the way in communities across the globe, with a movement 40 million strong and growing. Celebrate Welcoming Week, and show the world how your community welcomes everyone, from every background and demographic.

Together, we can make every community the kind of place where diverse people from around the world feel valued and want to put down roots. Together, we can build a nation of neighbors.

Welcoming America is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that is leading a movement of inclusive communities becoming more prosperous by making everyone who lives there know they belong. We help places move beyond divisiveness to ensure that all residents—including immigrants and refugees—can fully participate.

Cities such as Baltimore, Nashville, and Atlanta announced policy initiatives to improve the lives of immigrants and to foster a welcoming environment regardless of race, ethnicity, or place of origin.

St. Petersburg, FL: A university panel discussion with students from various cultural backgrounds with the goal to spread cultural awareness in order to better promote cultural inclusion

Ljubljana, Slovenia: SLOGA, a Slovenian non-profit organization, hosted a positive communications trainings for local inclusion practitioners.

TIPS TO GET STARTED

Build bridges through events that bring together immigrants and receiving community members. Volunteer projects help people from diverse communities come together and get to know each other, while also doing something positive for everyone.

1. Establish a clear purpose:

Communicate the purpose of your event in a concise way. Remember, the goal is to have fun and get all the participants to interact with each other.

2. Identify group volunteer projects:

Family-friendly events are highly recommended. Be sure to establish clear communication with a representative from your partner organization. (Ex. Parks and Recreation Department for a park cleanup to provide the necessary tools.)

3. Identify individuals to participate and lead the event:

Make sure you have a clear plan for engaging both immigrants and long time residents in planning and participating in the event.

4. Make your event known:

Create and widely distribute a simple flyer through hard copies as well as email, text, and social media. Start with people you are connected with and ask them to distribute it to their friends and networks. Don't forget to add your event to our map at welcomingweek.org!

5. Give Back:

Set up your Welcoming Week fundraiser by logging on to welcomingamerica.org and creating a fundraiser to share with your attendees.

6. Press releases:

Send press releases to local newspapers (including foreign language papers, if applicable). Check out our sample press release on page 9.

7. Plan the event to encourage new relationships:

For example, at a park cleanup you can gather everyone, explain directions, and send people out in small groups with people they don't know. Let the participants know at the beginning that part of the mission is to be meeting new people.

8. Thank and recognize the participants:

Thank them for giving and participating in the event, and ask them for their feedback and future participation. Some volunteers can be asked to take a future leadership role in planning your next event.

9. Committing year round:

Consider how you and your community can commit to the welcoming movement throughout the year, you can even check out welcomingamerica.org for ideas. You can create a plan to make your school, campus, workplace, or community a more welcoming one; join the Welcoming Network as an organization or local government; or take steps to get your community Certified Welcoming.

GIVING BACK

Welcoming America relies on the support of people and organizations like you to continue our work. Our goal is to raise $50,000 this year with the aim of creating more inclusive communities.

These are three ways that you can give back during Welcoming Week:

- Set a monetary goal for the dinner
- Make a personal commitment or a match for the evening
- Thank everyone who gave at your event the next day, and include the amount raised.

*(You can also host in other ways! Have a breakfast, hold an auction, compete in a chili cook-off, have a neighborhood street party, hold a car wash, or a poker night!)

CENSUS 2020 + WELCOMING WEEK

Beginning in March 2020 individuals across the United States will participate in our once a decade population count.

Census data will shape the future of each of our communities and define our voice in Congress. It will determine how more than $800 billion in federal government resources will be distributed each year. It will impact where schools, roads, and hospitals are built, and how many congressional seats are apportioned for all levels of government. It is difficult to understate the impact of the census on our communities, and the importance of Getting Out the Count.

As trusted voices in your communities, local organizations and governments are critical to the success of the 2020 Census. We hope you'll consider hosting a Census 2020 focused event during Welcoming Week and help spread the word about the importance of census participation. You'll see several ideas for Welcoming Week census activities below. You can find more at www.census.gov/partners/2020-materials.html.

- Have 2020 Census materials at your Welcoming Week events to communicate the importance of census data and encouraging census participation. You can find a variety of materials at censuscounts.org.
- Host a census workshop for community partners during Welcoming Week to identify barriers and generate solutions for participation in the 2020 Census.
- Include 2020 Census messaging in your Welcoming Week communications. You can find sample content including messaging and images for social media at www.census.gov/partners/2020-materials.html
- If you're hosting a festival or parade include a census booth or table. Many communities have local and state Complete Count Committees that may be able to staff the booth. Be sure to have information on the frequently asked questions about the census. You can find resources in a number of languages at censuscounts.org
- Ask Welcoming Week event partners to commit to participating in upcoming census activities. Welcoming Week is a great time to engage new partners. Keep those partnerships active by committing new partners to future collaboration on the census and other welcoming activities.

MEDIA TALKING POINTS

OVERVIEW OF MESSAGING

This is a time when many are embracing a vision of inclusion, standing up for our democratic values, and promoting communities where all feel that they are part of our social fabric. This is also a time of fear and increased divisions as groups are pitted against each other and some wonder if they are still welcome. Research shows that communicating a positive vision - one that emphasizes inclusion, unity, and a positive shared future - is key to overcoming divisions.
